Aikitaiji is neither Aikido nor Tai Chi Chuan as commonly understood. Its not anything new either. Its a compilation that I found useful after deleting things that didnt work for me. Aikitaiji is a two-point perspective on soft martial art. The best example to distinguish Aikitaiji is the way we engage in the cooperative but slightly competitive practice of Push-hands. Positive, playful competition adds realism (because your partner isnt just taking a dive). Its a direct encounter with flow when conducted in a playful manner. Aikido players could find proper Push-hands a very useful context for their practice. It makes a big difference when both sides agree to probe, push, lock and lose easily enough while putting up some resistance (its very important to train relative to resisting opponents but not so much at first). The other main difference, one that could help Tai Chi players, is that we have the option of using the joint-locking and throwing techniques I learned in Aikido (when its natural) from within the context of Tai Chi Push-hands. Aikido has joint-locking, throwingfalling...
