The upper surface of certain beds consists of a thin layer or scale of limestone differing from the preceding. Its color is usually light to dark brown. Fracture even. Specific gravity =2.67. It is always very fine-grained and compact, sometimes massive, but often displays on its vertical section, a series of fine horizontal lines of lamination. It is evidently a deposit of an impure carbonate of lime from at least partial solution in water; and as it occurs in layers intervening between the beds, thus marking their stratification, its section (which is always quite distinct in contrast with the white limestones) may be styled the bedding-line. It always adheres to the bed on which it lies, and is partially incorporated with it. A few series of specific gravity determinations have been made upon specimens of the limestone of each bed, selected on the same...
