Not illustrated. 1911 Excerpt: .cassimeres made in some sections of the United States, and this seems to be the line that offers the best chance for American competition. Duncan Fox Co., who are probably the largest importers of cotton goods along the west coast, say that they handle some American cotton cassimeres and find them very salable, but that they get few samples from the United States and these usually of a limited range. The same is said by other importers. American manufacturers do not seem to be aware of the large demand for cotton trousering in Peru and other countries of South America, for the quotations on most, though not all. classes of these goods seem to be such that we can compete. Sample books furnished by importers to give some idea of the demand in this line and the prices quoted from abroad are on file in the Bureau of Manufactures. Some goods.classed as casinetes are what are usually known as cotton worsteds and are made with fancy combination weaves, but others are plain-woven checked goods. The bulk are made with ordinary basket and rib weaves. The 2 up, 2 down twill weave in herringbone effect is very common. Some of these cotton trouserings run over 8 ounces to the yard, but the bulk are about 6-ounce and some are 4ounce goods. One of the most popular of this season s cotton trousering designs is now invoicing from England at 13d., or 26 cents, a yard in the...
